HUGE CROWD OF TOBACCO GROWERS HEAR BINGHAM

Masterly Presentation of Co-Operative Plan Results in Pledge Rush.

A large and enthusiastic crowd of Ohio County tobacco raisers greeted Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville, at the Court House in this city yesterday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. The circuit court hall was filled to overflowing with the farmers business men and others interested in the agricultural progress of the county. The occasion was also graced by the presence of a number of ladies. The meeting was presided over by the County Chairman, Mr. T. H. Black, and the speaker of the afternoon was introduced by Hon. A. B. Tichenor, of Point Pleasant. Judge Bingham was listened to with especial pleasure because of his fame as the originator of the co-operative marketing plan as applied to Kentucky and in a few minutes demonstrated to the initiated the fact that he is a past master of pure, concise, logical English. In a masterly address of over an hour he outlined the history and methods of co-operative marketing as successfully tried out in Denmark, California and the Burley section of Kentucky and pointed out the benefits which can be realized by the growers of the weed only through organization and collective bargaining. Most flattering reports were given of the progress of the drive for pool pledges in the other counties of the Green River district.

At the close of the address speeches were made by several Ohio County workers, scores of growers pledged their crops to the Association and as a result it was plainly apparent that Ohio County will deliver the goods with the best of them. Watch us grow.

Judge Bingham left later in the afternoon for Calhoun where he speaks today.

HARDIN TANNER SHOT BY WILLIAM LYSLE

Hardin Tanner age 37, was shot and dangerously wounded by William Lysle, age 45, near Deaneville, this county, early Thursday afternoon. Lysle used a 38 calibre revolver, the bullet penetrating his victim's breast and coming out through his back.

Lysle and wife, who is the divorced wife of Tanner, resided in a tent. Tanner went to the tent with the alleged intention of persuading his son, who was living with the Lysle family, to return home with him. Failing to do this, it is reported that he threatened Lysle with a knife, when the latter secured the revolver and shot him.

Sheriff G. A. Ralph was immediately called and with Deputy Geo. Jones went to the scene, where they arrested Lysle, brought him to Hartford and placed him in the county jail.

Latest reports yesterday were to the effect that Tanner will probably survive.

SIMMONS ROAD ACT HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 15.—The Simmons road bill, reorganizing the State Highway Department, was held unconstitutional by Judge Sam Hurst in the Franklin Circuit Court today. Judge Hurst ruled that the 1922 Legislature did not have the authority to name the members of the commission created by the act.

Walter Baize, of the Renfrow community, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Mason Morris, came to Hartford, Sunday afternoon, and going to the residence of County Clerk Guy Ranney requested that he issue the first named couple a marriage license. Having obtained the coveted paper, at about 12:30 a. m. they proceeded to the residence of County Judge R. R. ## PRIZE-WINNING BABY 100 PERCENT PERFECT Louisville, Sept. 15.—Kentucky can boast of a perfect child. She is Virginia May Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Miller of Jeffersontown, champion baby in the State Fair Baby Health Contest. Of the more than 3,000 children who have been examined by specialists under the charge of Dr. Edward J. Meyer during the ten annual contests, Virginia is the first one found not to have a single blemish. Perfect in every form, she scored 100 per cent.

It is the first year that a girl has won over a boy. The champion boy is James Scannell Wells, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Wells, 4308 West Broadway. His score was 99.6. Both the boy and girl were in the class for babies between the ages of 12 and 24 months.

The grand champion baby is 19 months old. Her father is a mechanic at the City Garage. He is 31 years old and the mother is 26. Mrs. Miller was Lillian Holloway, daughter of W. S. Holloway of Buichel. She said that Virginia May was a bottle-fed baby, she not having been able to nurse the baby after six weeks. The mother was much surprised at the baby's showing, not realizing that the baby was perfect physically.

504 Children Entered

The contest this year was the largest on record, 504 children having been entered. There were 241 girls, 245 boys and nine pairs of twins. Winners in the fourteen events were awarded their trophies and ribbons at 3 o'clock today in the big Live Stock Pavilion by G. Carney Cross, secretary of the State Fair.

CENTRAL PARK SCHOOL HAS AUSPICIOUS BEGINNING

The Central Park Graded and High School, McHenry, opened on Monday, Sept. 4th. After singing America devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Daley. He commended the many patrons who had assembled to witness the opening up on the superior school they have and briefly encouraged patrons, pupils and teachers to rally around the school and make it even better. Rev. McAtee made a short talk which was both humorous and inspirational and was highly enjoyed by all. After a few preliminary remarks by Prof. J. S. Mitchell and Mr. Ray Hocker, the pupils were placed in charge of their respective teachers, who enrolled all present revealing the fact that it was the largest one in the history of the school being more than 400 in the grades and 45 in high school department.

The faculty is composed of the following: Prof. J. S. Mitchell, Mr. Ray Hocker, Miss Cliffee Felix, Miss Edith Nuckols, Miss Pearl Brown, Mrs. Alice Faut, Miss Mary Brown and Mrs. Myrtle Armendt. Only one new member was added to the last year's faculty. Such being the case the work was easily and quickly arranged. This is the fourth year Prof. Mitchell has been at the head of the school and through his efficient and untiring leadership backed by an interested and appreciative constituency, a faculty excelled by none and a board of trustees whose motto is "Service," the school has progressed until it ranks with the best schools in the state. All parties concerned are to be congratulated upon that success.—Contributed.

REV. R. E. FUAQA'S HOME DESTROYED BY FLAMES

The two-story residence of Rev. R. E. Fuqua on Clay Street, this city, was totally destroyed by fire, which was discovered shortly after 7 o'clock, Sunday morning. A defective flue is supposed to have been responsible for the conflagration. Almost the entire male population of the city and a large number of women and children responded to the alarm but the fire had gained such headway that it was soon seen there was no chance of extinguishing it and every effort was made to save surrounding buildings and the contents of the burning residence. The greater portion of the household goods in the lower rooms was saved. However Rev. Fuqua's library, valued at $300; 4 beds equipped with quilts, blankets and feather beds; a large range and an almost new heating stove; two good overcoats, several pairs of shoes and other clothing; 45 qts. strawberry preserves and 36 cans tomatoes; a dresser, a wash stand, two incubators and a $16 motorcycle headlight were among the articles destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $2500. There was no insurance.

Sunday being Rev. Fuqua's preaching date at Prentiss, he and wife were in that community and there was no one at home except their son's wife, Mrs. Willie Fuqua, and her father, Mr. D. E. Bennett, who was taking breakfast there.

After most of the crowd had dispersed the roof of Mrs. Emma Hudson's across the street caught fire and the alarm was again sounded but the flames were soon put out.

"LIZZIE" KICKS SELF OFF FERRYBOAT

Messrs. Rowan Holbrook and John Bozarth, of Hartford, had a thrilling experience at the ferry at Kinchee's Bluff on Green River as they were returning from a business trip to Muhlenberg County points, one night recently. Being unable to arouse the ferryman, they undertook to ferry themselves and their Ford touring car across and all went well until they reached the Ohio County landing, the boat was moored and Bozarth attempted to drive off the boat. There was a strip of mud at the water's edge in which the front wheels of the car became struck. Bozarth then put on all the power available with the result that the stake to which the boat was tied was pulled up and the boat itself shot out from under the rear of the car by the back pressure of the rear wheels. The car began to submerge and Bozarth barely had time to leap to safety, the car sinking in about thirty feet of water. Mr. Holbrook was in the ferryboat pushing on the car by the back pressure of the rear was raised next day little worse for the experience.

LOGAN COUNTY SHAKERTOWN TO GO UNDER HAMMER

Shakertown, one of the historic spots of Western Kentucky and the home for more than a century of one of the few colonies of Seekers in the United States, will be only a memory after September 26th. On that day, the 4,113 acres of rich farm land, comparable to the Valley of the Nile, together with the farming equipment, herds of cattle, etc. will be sold at public auction, for the Shakers have declined until only two or three were left and these were well along in years and they have gone back to the parent colony in New York to spend their declining days.

The Shakers are one of the picturesque religious sects of this country. Though they never became very strong numerically as other religious peoples have, still because of their quaint manners and peculiar beliefs and mode of living in colonies to themselves, they have attracted a great deal of attention.

The colony at South Union in Warren county, Kentucky, is the last in the state. At one time it numbered over seven hundred souls and was a flourishing settlement. But the Shakers did not believe in marriage, and only by accessions from the outside could their numbers be increased or maintained. For a time they grew at a considerable rate, but then they began to decline and now have almost passed out of existence.

While men and women dwelt together in the same colonies, they lived separate and apart. There were separate entrances to the buildings for men and women, separate stairways in the houses, and the men roomed on one side and the women on the other.

They sprang from the Quakers in England and dressed in much the same manner and used the same style of addressing others; always the "thee" and "thou" and "thee" and "nay."

They did not believe in making oaths, in offering resistance or retaliation for any impositions or wrongs, and manifested a high religious spirit. They were very industrious and their lands were kept at a wonderful state of cultivation; they raised the finest crops and bred splendid cattle. They manufactured many things, such as brooms, preserves, baskets, and raised garden and field seed that were much sought after. In Kentucky they even grew silk worms to a considerable extent and manufactured silk from the cocoons.

Every community had its own stores where specialties of the group were offered for sale. Buildings of the Kentucky colony which are to be sold, over one hundred in number, include stores, hotels and other structures, all in good condition. Some of these buildings bear the dates of their erection, dating as far back as 1809 and as recent as 1917. One of the large buildings bears the date of 1869.

Along with the property will be sold much of the old, antique furniture and other personality.

OHIO CIRCUIT COURT UNDER GOOD HEADWAY

Number of Cases Already Disposed of By Court; Jury Trials Began Yesterday.

The regular September term of the Ohio Circuit Court began Monday morning with Judge George S. Wilson, of Owensboro, presiding and Commonwealth's Attorney Glover H. Cary, of Calhoun, representing the State. There will be no grand jury this term and probably very little criminal business will be taken up. However the following Commonwealth cases have been disposed of, viz: Com'th. vs. W. C. Daugherty, charged with illegal sale of intoxicating liquor, plea of guilty, law and facts submitted to Court, and punishment fixed at fine of $250 and 30 days in jail; Com'th. vs. W. C. Daugherty, charged with illegal manufacture of intoxicating liquor, also plea of guilty, $250 fine and 10 days in jail. It appearing that said defendant had already served the number of days indicated in jail, under agreement with Commonwealth's Attorney, he was given credit for said time on his sentence. Five other cases against the same defendant, on similar charges, were then dismissed.

The following citizens reported Tuesday morning and were impaneled as petit jurors, viz: M. M. Tate, M. C. Schroeder, J. P. Casebier, T. B. Bell, Alvin Ross; J. H. Leach; Marion W. Bell; Courtland Taylor; W. H. Baize; Ira Wallace; C. W. Foreman; Romney Graham; J. T. Barnes; W. R. Skinner; Dick Stevens; Jesse Swope; R. P. Beck; J. W. Miller; Barnett Tinsley and John Pirtle.

The following civil business has been disposed of so far: Deane vs. Claude Moseley, compromised and dismissed; Crescent Grocery Co. vs. H. B. Bowen, &c., continued; Herbert McKiff vs. Alva Carter, mandate of Court of Appeals, sustaining Ohio Circuit Court in favor of defendant, fled; Elbert Stoll vs. Magge Stoll, judgment for divorce; Bank of Livermore vs. F. L. Bone, dismissed for want of prosecution; Green River Coal Mining Co. vs. Ohio County Board of Supervisors, trial before Judge begun, taking of plaintiff's testimony completed and continued until 8th day; N. P. Dennis vs. W. H. Maddox, alleged breach of contract, submitted to jury before noon adjournment yesterday. There was no session of court yesterday afternoon on account of the tobacco rally and speaking at the Court House.

FARM EXTRACTS

INFORMATION FROM THE EXPERIMENT STATION — AGRICULTURAL PAPERS AND THE COUNTY AGENT'S OFFICE

Hessian Fly Damage Not Certain As Yet

The exact extent to which the Hessian fly probably will damage wheat sown in Kentucky this fall cannot be determined until the season is more advanced and the presence of the flies are observed on volunteer wheat in different sections of the state, according to Harrison Garman, entomologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. However, farmers are being warned to sow their grain after "fly-free" dates and to take other precautions in the way of well-prepared seed beds, the use of fertilizers and good seed in order to reduce the annual damage caused by wheat's worst insect pest. The fact that few reports have been received on damage done by the fly during the past year is no indication that the state's wheat crop will be free from the ravages of the insect this year, he pointed out.

"The condition of Kentucky's wheat crop has been improved materially from year to year because many farmers have adopted the practice of sowing their seed after the dates on which the flies have disappeared. However, the insect will continue to present a serious problem to the grain growers of the state until every farmer adopts the practice of sowing after the fly-free dates. One farmer who sows before these dates can harbor enough flies in his grain to infest many acres the following year. The Hessian fly problem in Kentucky will be largely solved when every farmer waits until after the recommended dates for his community before sowing wheat."

Because of the life history of the insect, wheat sown in September is almost sure to be badly infested. The adult flies become fewer in number toward the end of the month and when frosts come are largely destroyed. Wheat sown in October in Kentucky is not likely to be infested. In average seasons, October 5 has been found to be the most favorable date for sowing in Eastern Kentucky, October 5 to 10 for Central Kentucky and October 10 to 14 for Western Kentucky.

Well-prepared seed beds, the use of fertilizers and seed that is known to be strong and hardy all help to make wheat better able to withstand the attacks of the insect, crops specialists of the station say.

Soybean and Corn Growers Study Seed Saving Methods

Now that corn and soybeans are maturing in all parts of the state, many farmers who have the two crops growing together are wondering how they can harvest enough bean seed to plant soybeans in all their corn next year. Pulling a half ton or more of beans and stalks, storing them in the barn for a while and then later hauling them out is perhaps the best method of solving this problem, according to Ralph Kenney, soils and crops specialist of the College of Agriculture.

"A half ton of beans and stalks can be pulled with little difficulty and thrown into a wagon bed driven through the corn field. Leaving the stalks and the beans in the barn until late winter before the seeds are hauled out is a first class method of storing them since they are kept loose and dry. If the beans are threshed immediately after being pulled, they are apt to be ruined if they become damp afterwards or are damp when threshed.

"Commercial seed growers usually have one and a half tons of soybean straw from a crop that yields 20 bushels of seed an acre. Since this is the case, a half ton of good dry bean stalks and pods can be expected to yield five or six bushels of good, bright seed. The beans do not crack to a serious extent when flailed and are not molested by rats and mice when stored in piles."

Adair County Culls Lay Only Six Eggs During Week

Eight hens culled from the flock of 24 Rhode Island Reds owned by Miss Ella White, who lives near Columbia, Adair county, because they showed characteristic signs of being low producers that had stopped laying until spring produced a total of only six eggs during the week after they were removed, according to a report which she has just made to the extension division of the College of Agriculture on a culling demonstration held on her farm. During the week before culling the 24 hens in her flock produced a total of 28 eggs while the 16 that were kept as layers produced a total of 36 eggs during the week after culling.

Diseases Play Havoc In Many Swine Herds

Infectious swine diseases, parasites and various other troubles are making it increasingly difficult for the Kentucky farmer to produce pork at a profit, according to reports being received by the veterinary department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station from all over the state. Cholera, abortion, bowel troubles and intestinal parasites have been on the increase and given considerable trouble during the last few months, the reports indicate.

"Hogs should be vaccinated with both the serum and virus in all cases where symptoms and lesions indicate that the disease may be cholera," Dr. W. W. Dimock, head of the department said. In early stages, many diseased conditions of swine show symptoms that are common to cholera. If the owner waits for three or four days to make sure of the symptoms, a number of pigs may become infected and die provided the disease is cholera. Even though the disease is not cholera the cost of vaccination is not lost for the owner has an immune herd once he has vaccinated.

"Bowel troubles, which seem to be on the increase, have been investigated at the station for the last three years with the result that no radical progress has been made in controlling them. These troubles are most prevalent among shoats. As soon as trouble from this source becomes apparent, the animals should be given a purgative and then moved to clean sod pastures after the medicine takes effect. Plenty of fresh water, ground feed and the use of an intestinal antiseptic have been found to be helpful in controlling this trouble.

"Experiments are under way on a number of farms in the state to determine whether or not abortion in swine can be controlled by the use of vaccines. A number of sows in different herds that aborted this spring have been vaccinated and rebred to determine the value of this treatment. The vaccine is furnished free by the station.

"The common round worm of hogs seems to be the most troublesome parasite, this worm being most serious in pigs from four weeks to five months old. Oil of chenopodium which may be purchased at any drug store, is said to give results equally as good as those obtained by the use of higher priced drugs. Two cubic centimeters of the oil of chenopodium are given with about 30 cubic centimeters of castor oil to a pig weighing from 40 to 100 pounds.

Youngsters Learn Points Of Beef Cattle Business

Close to 200 Kentucky farm boys who are members of junior agricultural clubs in eight different counties of the state are getting a real taste of the beef cattle business in connection with the work they are doing this summer to develop the 194 baby beef calves which they will enter in the club classes at the first annual fat and feeding cattle show and sale to be held at the Bourbon Stock Yards, Louisville, Nov. 23 and 24, according to M. S. Garside, assistant state leader of junior agricultural club work at the College of Agriculture. Among other things, the youngsters are learning how to feed beef cattle for the greatest profit and how to show them to the best advantage at fairs and livestock shows, he said.

The feeding of the animals for the November show is now in an advanced stage with the result that many of the calves are showing prospects of being outstanding individuals equal in quality and finish to those developed by adult breeders and feeders. Many of the young beef cattlemen are getting in shape for the Louisville show by entering their calves in the numerous county and district fairs being held over the state during the present season. Their prospects for profits on their summer's work are exceptionally bright just at present in view of the fact that baby calves are topping everything in the way of cattle in prices on the various livestock markets.

Work of developing the animals has reached the point where the animals will be kept on full feed from now until the time of the show and pushed for the greatest possible gains. A mixture composed of four parts of ground corn, three parts of ground oats or barley and one and one-fourth parts of oil meal by weight is being recommended as the best feed for the animals from now until the show. This mixture has given excellent results in finishing cattle on the college farm. The animals should be allowed to eat all the grain mixture that they can clean up together with all the rough feed which they will eat.

Warren county claims 40 of the young beef cattlemen, Todd county 25, Union county 22, Trimble county 18, Lincoln county 20, Boyle county 22, Washington county 28 and Marion county 19.

Spud Seed Certification Gets Under Way In State

Forty Jefferson county farmers who are members of the certified seed potato growers' association recently organized in that county have made a good start with their plans to produce "pedigreed" potato seed, according to J. S. Gardner, vegetable gardening extension specialist of the College of Agriculture, who recently completed the first field inspection of their plots for the present season. Another inspection of the plants in the field will be held later in the season while the tubers also will be inspected in the bin before the stock can be completely certified and pronounced fit for sale as such. The 40 farmers are the growers of 150 acres of potatoes which will be certified this year and which are the first to be grown under a similar plan in the state.

The inspection, which was held for the chief purpose of detecting some of the more serious potato diseases, revealed the fact that the Jefferson county stock contained a percentage of disease less than the minimum allowed for certified potato stock. Mosaic, leaf roll, blight and black scurf were the chief diseases looked for in the inspection.

Despite the fact that the Jefferson county potatoes got off to a late start because of weather conditions, recent rains have benefited the crop considerably and indications are that the growers will obtain satisfactory yields. All growers concerned are enthusiastic about the prospects for this year's crop and the future of their newly formed association. Mr. Gardner reported.

Since the formation of the Jefferson county association, the production of certified seed potatoes has aroused considerable interest among farmers in other sections of the state. Organization of a second association has just been completed in Shelby county, five farmers being charter members of it. C. W. Gutrie has been named secretary of the new association.

Certified potato seed should continue to grow in favor with Kentucky farmers in view of the fact that the use of it has produced marked increases in yield over those obtained from ordinary seed stock. Mr. Gardner said.

Farm and Home News From Over Kentucky

A total of 380 Grayson county farmers and poultry keepers have been taught the method of separating the laying and loafing hens in their flocks by means of nine poultry culling demonstrations held recently by County Agent R. W. Seacore and the extension division of the College of Agriculture at Lexington. The owners of 40 flocks in the county reported that they handled a total of 1,700 hens, 450 of which proved to be low producers that had stopped laying until spring.

More than 2,000 acres of Whitley county farm land are expected to be seeded with cover crops this fall to protect them from erosion and leaching during the winter, County Agent E. F. Davis says.

Allen county farmers are contributing toward the success of the drive which the extension division of the College of Agriculture is conducting throughout the state against scrub breeding animals. County Agent A. M. Allen says. Thirteen of them have enrolled in the movement by agreeing to use nothing but purebred sires in all their breeding work.

A campaign designed to eradicate tuberculosis from McLean county herds is going forward rapidly. County Agent R. H. Ford says. A total of 125 animals have been listed by their owners to be tested for the disease.

Fayette county farmers and poultrymen are showing increased interest in the improvement of their poultry flocks, County Agent W. R. Gabbert says. Attendances at poultry culling demonstrations have been 50 per cent greater this year than last year, he added.

ONE WEAK SPOT

Many Hartford People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's The Back

Many people have a weak spot. Too often it's a bad back. Twinges follow every sudden twist.

Dull aching keeps up, day and night.

Backache is often from weak kidneys.

In such case a kidney medicine is needed.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

For backache and urinary ills.

Hartford people recommend the remedy. Ask your neighbor!

Mrs. Foster Bennett, Washington St., Hartford, says: "I took Doan's Kidney Pills to relieve me of an attack of pains in my back. My back pained all the time and mornings I felt lame, tired and languid. It was hard to do my housework. My kidneys acted irregularly at times. I was advised that Doan's Kidney Pills would regulate my kidneys and do away with the pains in my back and I am thankful to say that Doan's cured me and I have had no trouble since."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Bennett had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

HOUSE REVOLTS AGAINST TARIFF AS SUBMITTED

Recommits by Vote of 177 to 130;
Dye Embargo and Duty On Potash Objectionable.

Washington, Sept. 13. —Revolting against the action of conferees in writing back into the administration tariff bill a dye embargo, licensing provision and duty on potash, the house late today sent that measure back to conference. Its managers were instructed to accept senate amendments repealing the existing dye embargo and placing potash on the free list.

Some Republican house leaders, plainly surprised and disappointed, were pessimistic as to what the ultimate result of the house action would be. Representative Mondell, Wyoming, the floor leader, said he could not say what the outcome would be, while Chairman Fordney, of the ways and means committee, said it looked doubtful whether there would be a tariff bill at this session of congress. Chairman Mc-Cumber of the senate managers, took a more optimistic view, however, stating that the senate would agree to another conference and that the differences would be adjusted speedily.

The vote in the house was 177 to 130, with 102 Republicans, 74 Democrats and the only socialist voting in support of the motion by Representative Garner, Democrat, Texas, to recommit, and 126 Republicans and four Democrats voting against it. The vote followed a day of preliminary wrangling and sharp debate and announcement of the result by Speaker Gillett, was greeted by applause on both sides of the chamber and with loud cheers from many of the Democrats.

Most of the Republicans voting for the Garner motion are from the Western agricultural states and New York.

Apparently the move by Representative Garner, who is the ranking Democrat on the committee which framed the original tariff to include potash in his motion to recommit, took the managers of the bill by surprise.

The potash duty proposed by the conferees was 1½ cents a pound for three years as against a five year's duty ranging from one cent to two and one-half cents a pound in the original house bill. The senate placed potash on the free list.

YOUNGEST HOBO FOUND IN LOUISVILLE

Barefooted and attired only in a pair of pants, shirt and cap, which he had not had off except possibly for an occasional swim since the latter part of July, when he ran away, the youngest professional hobo ever picked up by the local police, was found on the river front this morning by Patrolman Huck Jones. He is Richard Godfrey, 10 years old, son of Joe Godfrey, 446 North Broadway, Lexington.

"I have been sleeping along the roadside, in haystacks and on a big sandpile down here by the river," said Richard, "and I've been eating just what I've found. I never begged a thing any time."

Patrolman Jones bought Richard his first meal since he ran away from home—a steak, tomatoes and coffee. It was the first time Richard had sat down to a table since leaving home. The police are holding him until they hear from the Lexington authorities.

Richard's bed since he landed in Louisville after a walk of four days and four nights from Frankfort had been a warm sandpile on the river, in which he burrowed at night. He ate his breakfasts at the Haymarket, where he picked up such fruit and vegetables as had been thrown away.

Just a Regular Boy
Richard is just a normal 10-year-old boy, with dark brown hair, freckles and a fair complexion. But one thing that Richard did was not a normal thing. He confessed to taking $12 which his mother had left on a table. This he spent "for foolishness" in Lexington in two days. The only thing of value he bought was an 85-cent waist. He then took an interurban car for Frankfort and had 5 cents left when he got there.

"I stayed in Frankfort for a week," said Richard. "Slept in a place where they're building a church and ate what I found."

He had shoes and stockings when he set out to walk to Louisville, but soon cast them aside. Nothing has been the matter with him, Richard said, except that he stumped his toe and it festered. A riverman told him to stick a needle in it.

"I didn't have any needle. But I stumped it again and it broke and then got well."

"I don't know whether my father will take me back. I ran away a year ago for a couple days and he said if I ever did it again I shouldn't come back.—Louisville Times.

A Perfect Make-up

While Farmer Seedplant was chopping wood the other day he injured his foot so badly that he was forced to limp around with a cane.
A young man saw him making his painful way up the village street and jokingly asked him:

"What's the matter with your sore foot, Pop?"

"Nothin', durn you, nothin'," snarled the old man. "I jest robbed a bank up there a ways and I'm usin' this disguise as a means of escape."

Indubitably

Julian is a literal-minded little chap, as was evidenced not long ago when he met with a slight accident.
He had fallen from a ladder and when his mother ran to pick him up, she cried:

"Oh, my dear, how did you fall?"

Whereupon Julian, who is a second grade pupil, replied:

"Vertically." —American Legion Weekly.

PARTIAL PEACE PLAN ACCEPTED BY UNION CHIEFS

Secretary of Labor Davis Announces Settlement On 35
to 40 Per Cent of Lines

Chicago, Sept. 13.—B. M. Jewell, head of the striking railway shop crafts, announced that the union's policy committee of ninety had authorized him to negotiate individual peace agreements with the railroads of the country, based on the terms of a general settlement plan adopted by the policy committee.

Mr. Jewell said: "We have agreed to the terms of a settlement yielding wherever possible and standing where there was no other avenue open honorably to those we represent."

All men are to return to work in positions of the class originally held June 30, 1922, at the same point, according to the statement issued by the policy committee.

Washington, Sept. 13. —Virtual settlement of the rail strike as affecting 35 to 40 per cent of the railroads of the country was announced late today by Secretary of Labor Davis on the basis of reports from the meeting in Chicago of the General Policy Committee of the striking shop craft unions.

Washington officials of the Association of Railway Executives had received no word as to the virtual settlement as reported by Secretary Davis late in the day and after an inquiry at the Labor Department, Alfred P. Thom, general counsel of the association, telegraphed executives' representatives in Chicago for details.

The Southern Railway had not been officially notified up to 4 o'- clock this afternoon of the settlement of the shopmen's strike which Secretary of Labor Davis said was assured on a number of roads. Railroad officials withheld comment pending receipt of definite information from Chicago.

L. & N. TO EQUIP PASSENGER TRAIN WITH RADIO SET

The first fully-equipped radio railroad car in the South yesterday was put to test by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in the Tenth Street yards.

The car has an antenna strung eighteen inches from the top along its length, and a specially constructed receiving set. It was run at varying speeds while the radio concert of The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times was broadcast yesterday afternoon. The reception of the concert was not impaired in any way by the speed of the car.

R. R. Hobbs, superintendent of telegraph, has had the radio car under construction for some time. The railroad intends to outfit one of its flyers, the Pan-American, with a receiver for the entertainment of passengers.

Mr. Hobbs was pleased with the results of the experiment yesterday, and the car will be attached to regular trains and taken as far as New Orleans for further experiments.

More than 1,000 persons were attracted to Union Station by the radio car yesterday and an equally large crowd last night.

WILL THE FARMER BE COME A BUSINESS MAN?

Yesterday afternoon the farmers of Ohio County had the golden opportunity of hearing from the lips of Kentucky's greatest philanthropist the details of the first feasible plan for rescuing the agricultural interests of the State from the grip of the system which has made the tiller of the soil the scapegoat of the industrial world. The spirit of intelligent co-operation has been accepted and successfully applied in practically all other branches of industry, but the farmer has continued in his lethargy of dissatisfaction but helpless disorganization. He has done, through the years, a major portion of the nation's productive labor, but has had to be satisfied with an entirely inadequate propo-tion of the proceeds of his toil.
Once the cause was in a measure due to the lack of systematic and scientific management of the actual means of production but this has been in great measure overcome by the application, consciously or otherwise, of the methods of modern farming technique. But the other drawback has persisted, in the way of haphazard methods of marketing the products of the farmer's labor.
The gain in methods of production has been lost by the lack of intelligent co-operation in the way of collective bargaining. But at last the best minds of the country have been centered upon the farmer's ultimate problem and a well-conceived and practicable plan has been evolved and put into operation for the cooperation of the tiller of the soil in the obtaining of a living wage and a reasonable profit for his products.
Initiated among the fruit raisers of California the plan has been applied, and most successfully, in the Burley tobacco raising section of Kentucky. It is now being brought to the raisers of dark tobacco in West Kentucky. Judge Bligham, Col.
Passonneau, Mr. Sapir and the host of other faithful workers for the cause have been and are still bringing to the tobacco raisers of the Black Patch the good tidings of freedom,—freedom from the control of the market by the dealers and buyers, who, whether legitimate operators or speculators, have in the very nature of things, looked first to their own interests, the fixing of the purchase price of tobacco at the lowest possible figure. Now through the workings of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association the tobacco raiser has offered to him a safe and sure method of industrial salvation by control of production, systematic and scientific grading and business like methods of marketing.

But to leave generalities and getting down to cases. The drive for membership in the Dark Tobacco organization in Ohio County is now in full swing. Citizens of all classes have rallied to the aid of the farmers and it is within the power of the workers, if received in the proper spirit, to obtain the required acreage in the county by Oct. 1, and thus insure for us the benefits which have been realized in the Bluegrass.
By so doing the price of tobacco can be doubled and trebled and the tobacco raiser will be placed upon a plane of deserving prosperity. There is no serious opposition in the county to the movement. Only the spirit of inaction stands in the way.
Let us once and for all throw off this incubus of inertia and each and every one put his shoulder to the wheel of progress. Farmers, attention! Your salvation is in your own hands. Meet the workers more than half way and let the best county in the world "go over the top," 100 percent in acreage pledged, before the end of the drive. We pledge our wholehearted help, and we trust and believe you can and will do it. Let's go!

THIRD CLASS POST-MASTER EXAMINATION

At the request of the Postmaster General, the United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination to be held on October 14, 1922, to fill the position of postmaster at the offices hereinafter named at which a vacancy exists, or is about to occur.
It is expected that appointments will be made as a result of this examination unless it is found in the interest of the service to fill any vacancy by transfer or promotion.
This is not an examination under the Civil Service Act and rules, but is held under an Executive order of May 10, 1921, providing for such procedure.

Following is a list of post offices for which the examination will be held, with the salary and date of vacancy in each case:

Office	Salary	Date of vacancy
Beaver Dam, 2,000	Oct. 3, 1922.
Morgantown, 1,700	Oct. 3, 1922.

Applicants must submit to the examiner on the day of the examination their photographs, taken within two years, securely pasted in the space provided on the admission cards sent them after their applications are filed. Tintypes or proofs will not be accepted.

Application Form 2241, and Form 2228, containing full information as to the requirements to be met and the character of the examination to be given, may be obtained from any one of the vacancy offices listed, or from the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. Applications must be properly executed, showing the examination point at which the applicant desires to be examined, and must be filed with the Commission at Washington in time to arrange for the examination at the examination point chosen.

NOTE—Attention is directed to the fact that so-called civil service correspondence schools have no official status and no connection with the Government. Authentic information in regard to examinations may be obtained only from the United States Civil Service Commission, and without cost. Instructions of the Post Office Department to postmasters and postal employees relative to such schools appear in the Postal Bulletin of September 12, 1921, and in the October, 1921, supplement to the Postal Guide.

The Bello-Pacifist.

"H. G. Wells is known in Europe as a bello-pacifist, and truly his recent peace articles have stirred up a lot of bitterness and strife."
The speaker was Stephen Lauzanne, the French publicist. He went on:
"Wells reminds me of the cantankerous individual who was about to be married. When he came to the church on the wedding morning he warned the minister beforehand that he didn't want any fuss.

"He consented, however, to station himself in due form at the flower-decked altar, but as the minister proceeded with the ritual he got more and more impatient. Finally, when he was asked if he, Henry, did take this woman, Jane, to be his lawful wedded wife and so on, he gave a snort before the question was half through, and then turned to the congregation and said in a loud, jeering voice:

"Well, I guess I came here with that intention."

They Never Did.

My most embarrassing moment occurred while dramatizing a Christmas play. I had the part of the mother of a large family presiding at the feast on Christmas day. It fell to me to carve the goose. Having rehearsed this part, I was anticipating no difficulty, so I started bravely out on the breast bone. Clearly and slowly it slipped out of my grasp. I tried again with the same effect. As the titters from the audience increased, I became slightly confused.

At this opportune moment the father, sitting opposite, uttered his next lines, which were: "Did you ever see such a goose?"

With that the audience began to roar, and I gave it up in ignominious defeat.—Exchange.

Plugging Out.

A Kentucky man seems to have found a relative of the city girl who thought it must be cold work harvesting the winter wheat.

The young woman of whom the Kentuckian tells is a native of Cincinnati, and was lately talking with him about tobacco and tobacco-raising.

"I should like ever so much to see a tobacco field," she said, "especially when it is just plugging out."—Wayside Tales.

Broadened Observation.

"A statesman has to be a profound student."

"No doubt about it," replied Senator Sorghum. "There was when a good campaigner could get by if he kept his eye on the map of his own state. Now you've got to be an expert in the geography of the world."

World's Largest Reservoir.

In about two years London's reservoir at Littleton will be the largest artificial reservoir in the world. It will hold water to supply London for a month, or 6,500,000,000 gallons. Its surface will cover 800 acres.

AUDIO FREQUENCY AMPLIFIER UNITS

Construction of Two Is Described, With the Materials That Must Be Purchased.

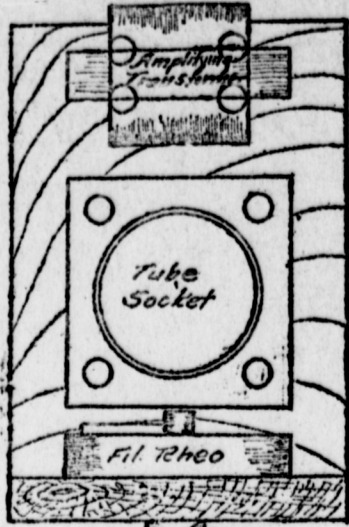

Theoretically any number of transformer coupled stages of audio frequency amplification can be used. However, due to the amplification of static disturbances, power line induction, tube noises, etc., three stages are about the practical limit. If more than three stages are used the noises become so loud in comparison with the signal that it is difficult to hear the signal.

Since audio frequency amplifying transformers can be purchased at any radio shop and the simplest method of coupling, the construction of two audio frequency amplifier units will be described.

The first unit will be arranged to be used in conjunction with the vacuum tube receiver mounted on the eight-inch square horizontal base board, previously mentioned in this column. The receiver that were originally connected to the telephone receiver is connected to the terminals of the amplifying transformer. One side of the secondary of the amplifying transformer is connected to the grid, and the other side of the secondary to the filament and common battery lead. The filament rheostat is in series with the positive side of the filament. The plate terminal on the tube socket is connected to one side of the phone, the other side of the phone being connected to the positive side of a 45-volt "B" battery. Use a "hard" tube as an amplifier.

When using the amplifier unit for the first time, tune the receiver with the detector only. To connect the terminals TT from the amplifier unit in place of the phones in the plate circuit of the amplifier, adjust both the filament rheostats until the signal strength is maximum.

Amplifier Unit

If it is desired to still further amplify the incoming signal two amplifier units can be constructed, the output of each unit being connected to the input of the next, and the phones being placed in the plate circuit of the last amplifier tube.

In constructing the second unit make the panel and the baseboard of the same thickness, kind of wood, and finish as used for the receiver. The panel should be four inches wide and six inches high, the baseboard three inches wide and four inches deep to "match up." Use the same kind of binding posts and filament rheostat that were used on the receiver.

Fig. XXXIV is a plan view of the amplifier unit, and Fig. XXXV is an elevation of the front view of the panel. The diagram of connections is, of course, the same as for the previously described unit and is shown in Fig. XXXIII.

These amplifier units can be used in conjunction with any radio receiver. The same units connected electrically as shown in Fig. XXXIII can be mounted to suit the builder's own taste.

SEEKS STANDARD APPARATUS

National Radio Chamber of Commerce Is Negotiating With Federal Departments.

The National Radio Chamber of Commerce is negotiating with the various government departments, such as the bureau of standards, Department of Commerce, United States signal corps and United States Navy department, with a view to co-operating with these departments in the standardization of radio apparatus, methods of manufacture, methods of testing, etc. The National Radio Chamber of Commerce intends to work with these departments and assist them in their radio problems.

TIPS FOR FANS

A radio amateur in France has tough luck. He can't send at all and is not permitted to listen in on certain government transmitting stations.

A condemned murderer in a Boston jail is spending his remaining hours in the construction of a radio receiving set so that the inmates may enjoy programs during their hours of unemployment.

Despite all advice to the contrary, people still insist on using dry cells for the filament supply of vacuum tubes. The batteries will hold up for about five minutes and then they will slowly die down, until nothing at all can be heard.

Secretary Wallace has announced completion of plans for broadcasting weather, crop and market news by radiophone from Memphis, Tenn.; Jacksonville, Fla.; Roswell, N. M., and Milwaukee, Wis., thus, giving the Department of Agriculture 41 stations throughout the United States from which agricultural news may be disseminated.

A radio aerial well grounded will take all of the joy out of lightning rod salesmanship. Run a No. 4 copper wire down from your lightning arrester, as specified by the new regulations of the underwriters' code compiled in Washington recently, and your home will be amply protected from lightning—if you have gone deep into the earth in making your ground.

ACCIDENTS SECOND TO DISEASES IN KENTUCKY

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 16.—More persons came to their death in 1921 in Kentucky by violence and in accidents than were carried off by any disease except pneumonia and tuberculosis, it is shown by figures made public here today by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health. Violent and accidental deaths were 1,799, according to the figures, while deaths from tuberculosis were 3,135 and pneumonia was responsible for 2,031.

Total deaths from accidental causes were 1,424, the largest single item, according to J. F. Blackerby, director of the bureau, being burns of various kinds, which were responsible for 140 deaths, and then road accidents occasional the next largest number of fatalities, being responsible for 140 deaths, and then in order come mine and quarry accidents, 138 deaths; automobile accidents, 93 deaths, and accidental poisonings, 6 deaths.

Of the 375 deaths by violence, 173 were suicides and 202 homicides. In connection with these, Mr. Blackerby pointed out, referring to the need of more stringent legislation against the carrying of firearms, that over half of the suicides were by means of some kind of firearms, and that in the case of the homicides firearms were used in 90 per cent of the murders.

A. F. OF L. URGES IMPEACHMENT OF H. M. DAUGHERTY

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 14.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor today demanded the impeachment of Attorney General Daugherty and Federal Judge Wilkerson of Chicago in connection with the injunction proceedings brought by the Government in the rail shippers' strike.

Immediate steps looking toward impeachment will be taken by the Federation, said a formal statement embodying the labor organization's demand.

OIL FEVER HITS MONROE AS FLOWING WELL IS STRUCK

Tompkinsville, Ky., Sept. 14.—Excitement is running high here as the result of the striking of a flowing oil well on the Keers farm on Kettle Creek, this county. A West Virginia syndicate owns the well. A local company has been formed and will start drilling on an adjoining lease tomorrow.

Slight Error

The deputy sheriff was trying to break the bad news gently.

"Are you the Widow Jones, ma'am?" he asked the woman who came to the door.

"Widow Jones?" she retorted with asperity. "Not so you could notice it. My old man is sittin' back there in the kitchen this minute."

"Sorry to have disturbed you then ma'am," replied the deputy politely. "Guess the boys down to Hooper's must have gone and lynched the wrong feller."—American Legion Weekly.

In Haste

The host was nervous and inexperienced and he rose hurriedly at the conclusion of a song with which one of the guests had been obliging.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he began. "Before Mrs. Smith started to sing she—at—told me her—at—voice was not in the best condition and—ah—asked me to apologize for it, but I neglected to do and—ah—I apologize now."—American Legion Weekly.

Reason Enough

"Say Pop, why are all the drug stores on corners?"

"So they will be handy for auto collisions, my son."—American Legion Weekly.

Inference

Mrs. Huyler: "My husband has increased my allowance."

Mrs. Cuyler: "What did you catch him doing?"—American Legion Weekly.

Talking Movies Possible.

Though "speaking films" were first made about 1900, their combination with picture films has just been successfully accomplished for the first time, by two Swedish scientists, and the talking movie seems about to become a reality. The method, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, employs the fundamental method of earlier developments, which makes use of the property of selenium for controlling a telephonic current when actuated by variable illumination. The novelty of this latest work seems to be in the successful combining of picture-bearing and sound-recording films by running them on the same shaft, while taking and reproducing the double record, and in making selenium-controlled electric currents generate a loud-speaking telephone.

Think of it, new baked bread, cakes, cookies and pies. You can just smell them. Think of the times you robbed the cookie jar. Think what it means to know that you have a range that will give you a positive one-third to one-half fuel saving.

Cole's Sanitary Down Draft Range

It is equipped with of combustion. This gives you a saving of one-third to one-half on your fuel. Burns the fuel gases that other makes of ranges waste and carries a broad sheet of clean flame under all six lids and entirely around the oven. This means even cooking and baking results. Even steady heat—not a flashy wasteful one. Holds fire over night. Gas tight—rust proof vitreous enameled linings. This range will outlast any range on the market and will pay for itself in fuel saved. Furnished in blue or gray enamel or plain black. A beauty from start to finish.

See us before our supply is exhausted.

Believe It or Not

A big games hunter had just returned from the hills and was recounting some of his adventures. "The most astonishing experience I had," he said, "was when I fired my last bullet at a bear and missed him."

"Did the bear give you a chase?" asked one of the listeners.

"No. You see he knew me by reputation and was so surprised at my missing him that he fainted dead away."

ALL ABOUT VACUUM
TUBE AS AMPLIFIERConnected Up to Furnish Rated Filament Current and Maintain Plate Potential.

Figure XXIV shows a three-electrode vacuum tube connected with the "A" battery to furnish the rated filament current and a "B" battery to maintain rated plate potential. In the plate circuit is a current meter to read the plate current. A "C" battery is connected in the grid circuit to maintain the grid at the positive potential O-A in order to have the tube operate at the point A on the characteristic curve. To T-T will be connected the alternating difference of potential having a maximum positive value equal to A-C and a maximum negative value equal to A-B.

The resulting variation in plate current is shown in Fig. XXV. Inserting the tube functioning as an amplifier, with an amplification factor of K, between the supply of alternating difference of potential at T-T, was just K times what it actually is.

All these considerations have been based on the assumption that the total impedance (resistance to the flow of an alternating current) of the entire plate circuit existed internally in the tube between the filament and the plate, and that the external electrical circuit from the plate to the filament had zero impedance. Of course, this condition never exists in practice. The external plate circuit always has impedance in it in the form of telephone receivers, resistance choke coils, or transformer primaries, depending upon the means that is employed to couple the successive tubes together.

It is only where the external plate circuit of a vacuum tube has zero impedance that the plate voltage is equal to that of the "B" battery. As soon as an impedance is introduced into the external plate circuit, part of the total potential of the "B" exists as a drop across the external impedance, so that only a portion of the total "B" battery is available at the plate.

Fig. XXVI represents the characteristic curve of the tube as we have been discussing it, with no impedance in the external plate circuit. This curve is called the "static" characteristic curve, to differentiate from the others. Suppose that we introduce into the external plate circuit an impedance in the form of a resistance as shown by R in Fig. XXVII. When the current flows around through the plate circuit, there will be a voltage drop across the resistance R equal in value to R times I, where I is the plate current in amperes. If the internal impedance of the tube be denoted by Z, then the drop in voltage from the plate to the filament inside of the tube is ZI. The sum of these voltage drops, ZI plus RI, is always equal to the applied voltage of the "B" or plate circuit battery. The voltage of the "B" battery is constant.

As the plate current increases, the value of RI increases because R, the external plate resistance, does not change in value. So if the sum of ZI plus RI is always equal to a constant when RI increases, ZI must decrease. This means that when a constant "B" battery potential is applied to the plate circuit of a vacuum tube, containing external resistance, an increase in plate current causes a decrease in the potential existing between the plate and the filament.

The "static" characteristic curve was drawn on the assumption that the difference in potential between the plate and the filament remained constant, obviously then, when the external plate circuit has other than zero impedance, the static characteristic curve no longer holds true.

The characteristic curve of a tube having other than zero impedance in the external plate circuit is the "dynamic" characteristic. The greater the variations in plate current, the greater the variation in the voltage existing between the plate and the filament. If the value of R, the external plate impedance, is increased, the greater will be the variation in the plate to filament voltage for the same variation in plate current.

In Fig. XXVI (2) is represented the dynamic characteristic of a tube with a certain definite value of R in the plate circuit. Curve (3) represents the dynamic characteristic of the same tube with a larger value of R in the plate circuit. Finally the extreme condition is reached, in which R is made infinitely large and the dynamic characteristic becomes parallel to the grid voltage axis as in (4). This shows that variations of grid potential would produce no variation of plate current, but maximum variations of plate variations of plate potential. These would be amplified variations of grid potential variations.

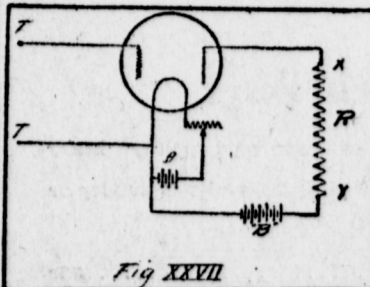

This last condition of having the variations of plate potential amplified variations of grid potential variations is the ideal condition sought for in vacuum tube amplifiers.

In Fig. XXVII as the current of the plate circuit flows through the resistance R there is a drop in potential across R between the points X and Y that will be proportional to the current flowing. If the value of R and the plate potential are high enough this potential variation between X and Y will be exactly proportional to and K times that applied to the grid of the tube at T-T.

To amplify a signal from a radio receiver then, it is only necessary to have a circuit whose output is to be amplified connected to T-T and the amplified output taken off at X and Y. If greater amplification is desired the output from X and Y is run through another circuit similar to that shown in Fig. XXVII.

SPARKS

The "Totemites," a society of radio fans at Seattle, decided that receiving code signals during broadcast programs is inevitable, and instead of registering complaints, opened a free school to its members for instruction in the code.

People living in isolated sections are getting great satisfaction from radio, as it is a cure for loneliness. They not only feel that they have friends within "speaking distance" but that entertainers of the highest grade are next door neighbors.

Major General Squire, chief signal officer, U. S. A., told the graduates of the Camp Vail signal school there had been greater developments in radio in the past decade than in any other science. Also that in future wars barrages and bombardments would be laid down by radio.

The British have developed a two-purpose vacuum tube for use in conjunction with radio. The new tube, or valve, as it is called in England, is the Mulard Oran. The plate voltage is given as 30, and the filament voltage at 3.6 to 4. The base of the tube is of the four-prong type. It is said to combine efficiently the qualities of the rectifier and amplifier, which make it possible to use one tube for all purposes.

A SILENT MEMBER

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

Patience took stock of herself, contemptuously.

"If there was just one thing that I could do perfectly," she thought. "As it is, I'm an indifferent musician, a fair—well, hardly fair typist and I can play or create dresses much better than I can sew them."

Wistfully she repeated her thought to her busy sister Rosalind, when Rosalind came in from the music classes. Absently, her mind on the dull pupils she had left, the sister made answer.

"Don't worry your head, Patty; you will come into your own, some day."

"And in the long wait," Patience replied, "I'm inflicted upon you, Rosalind. Because your friends are as generous as yourself, is really no reason that I should burden the—firm."

A laughing face appeared in the doorway of the little flat. "Firm?" repeated the newcomer, "what a pretentious name for three carelessly ambitious students."

Beatrice came into the room. "Dear girl," she seriously addressed Patty. "You are the silent member of our firm; we just couldn't get along at all without your bright presence. You are the flower in the desert, the courage in despair. Is dinner ready? Lucy May grows slower every day."

Patty jumped up from theavenport. "It's ready," she offered.

Lucy May in the small kitchen said: "No, dinner ain't ready."

Patty was pinching the cloth for the evening meal. "I am trying to hurry things up," she promised.

"I have been speaking at the Y. W.," Beatrice explained, "and I have a talk at the high school this evening. I am sure I do not know how I shall ever get my notes in order for the talk at the federated clubs tomorrow. And then there is my blue satin, in woeful need of pressing—"

"Oh, I'll do that for you," Patty called. She was putting the roses on the table. "Dinner ready," she cheerfully announced.

"How," asked Beatrice at table, "went the classes today, Rosalind?" "The Baldwin children," Rosalind answered—"and of course my most desirable pupils from a financial standpoint, are at times, almost impossible."

Breezily, Nan, the ever late, entered. "I have designed a perfectly wonderful dress for Mrs. Rich Compt," she began enthusiastically, "but there is a detail about the front panel which does not please her. We almost came to blows, regarding lines. I deserted, making dinner a pretense for departure, but tomorrow I shall have to go over the whole thing again."

The flat vacated that evening, the busy friends going on to various affairs that claimed their presence. Patience, humming her gay little song, examined carefully Nan's drawing of the disputed creation. Then, happily, Patty smiled, while her sure fingers traced a copy. The panel referred to was undoubtedly improved in the effort. Beatrice had left her notes of tomorrow's talk in a confusing pile on her dresser. Patty attacked them, a frown of perplexity wrinkling her pretty brow. The typewriter was humming, when a dark head appeared in the doorway.

"I will be very good, and read my paper in quiet," begged a masculine voice, if you will let me come in, Patty. You are, I see—the man called, "filing as usual. Where are the celebrities?"

"Sit down, David," the girl carelessly invited. "I'll be through with this, in a moment. It's coming out fine."

"Whatever is it?" David remarked inquiringly, but he was not informed. Beatrice's notes, neatly labeled, were in her club book, when Patty returned to the room.

"You will be glad to be alone for another little while, won't you, David," she asked tentatively, "while I—I have something to press in the kitchen?"

"Of course," he answered. Apologetically she seated herself before the telephone stand.

"I thought," she explained, "it might be better to give the message this evening, so I could have the children over early—just after Rosalind goes out. She gives a few home lessons in the morning, and the Baldwin children are different, David. They just can't not spoil the music; and their mother must be pleased, and proud of them. I can make the drill song a sort of game. You know I am not expert in music, David—or in any other thing."

Patty's voice was momentarily absent. But only momentarily. "I will have those children, enjoying that drill," she enthused. "You'll see, David." Sighing in relief, she looked back at him, as she arose.

"It is settled," Patience said, "the Baldwin children will be here in the morning. Now that is a secret, and you are not to tell. I, you know, am the silent partner of our otherwise gifted firm—of four."

Very deliberately the man folded his paper, then, before Patty could realize what had happened, he had her in his arms.

"And I am looking for a silent partner myself," he said after a happy silence. "Patty, darling, there is no use your trying to refuse me; the husband of our firm will be an appreciative member—"

"I'm not thinking of refusing," said Patience demurely.

MADE BUSINESS OF MURDER

William Burke, Infamous Irishman, Also Instrumental in Adding Significant Verb to Language.

Burke and Hare were two notorious body-snatchers, or resurrectionists, who carried on their infamous trade in Edinburgh. William Burke was born in Ireland in 1792, and went to Scotland as a laborer about 1817. In 1827 he was living in a cheap lodging house kept by another Irish laborer named William Hare. About the end of 1827 one of Hare's lodgers, an army pensioner, died, and Burke and Hare sold the body to Dr. Robert Knox, an Edinburgh anatomist. Hare thereupon suggested body-snatching as a business and Burke agreed. The two men then started in to entice poor travelers to Hare's or some other cheap lodging house. The victims were piled with liquor and then suffocated under mattresses, without marks of violence. Doctor Knox took the bodies and paid up to £14 ($60) for them. At least 15 people had been murdered in this way before Burke and Hare were arrested. Hare turned king's evidence, and Burke was found guilty and hanged in Edinburgh on January 28, 1829. Hare found Scotland too hot for him and went to England, where he is believed to have died under an assumed name. The verb "to burke," meaning to suffocate, to strangle, to suppress, or to put out of the way secretly, had its origin in Burke's method of doing away with his victims.

WHERE GREAT EXPLORER LIES

South Georgia Island, Tomb of Shackleton, Lonely Spot in the Great Antarctic Region.

An interesting picture of life in South Georgia island, the "Gateway of the Antarctic," where Shackleton was buried, was given by an explorer who made a research expedition there a few years ago. At that time there was only one woman on the island, and she was the domestic in the household of Capt. C. A. Larsen, a former Antarctic explorer who had settled down as head of a Norwegian whaling station on the island. "Below my solitary tent," the correspondent writes, "the grassy bank sloped sharply to a milk-colored glacial stream entering an inlet of the sea only 50 yards away. A quarter of a mile across the inlet stood the perpendicular front of a beautiful valley glacier, coming down between peaked hills from the lifeless, silent interior. Penguins bobbed out of the sea below the glacier and were my most interesting callers, for their curiosity could not resist a human being. Sea elephants crawled unconcerned up the stream below me and went to sleep among the hummocks on the beach. Above the tent, on the plateau of the little promontory, seven pairs of albatrosses carried on their courtship and nesting, along with giant petrels, skuas, kelp gulls and the pretty little antarctic titlarks, the only land bird of the Far South, whose cheerful song was almost the sole homelike sound."

Details Needed.

A woman, blessed with a masterful disposition and considerable property, died, leaving behind her a will in which her husband was cut off with a dollar, on the ground that he had deserted her a year before.

The lawyer finally located the man and broke the news gently by telling him that he had received only a small bequest.

"How much?" carelessly asked the man.

"One dollar."

With the same carelessness, the man turned toward the door. Just as he reached it, however, a sudden thought struck him.

"Say," he called back anxiously. "Did she specify what I was to do with this dollar?"

Sarcasm From the Grave.

The will of Alexander Louis Teixeira de Mattos, the English translator of Euboe, Maeterlinck, Couperus, Zola and many other continental writers, contains one bequest that will interest a good many booklovers who have loaned their favorite volumes not wisely but too well—at any rate, too generously, says the Living Age. The estate of Mr. de Mattos was not large, its gross value amounting to less than £3,000 ($15,000), and many of his bequests take the form of books. He leaves books to many of his friends. One volume in particular is left to a certain friend and is described as one "which he borrowed many years ago and has not returned."

Increased Tractor Power.

A new attachment designed to give the small tractor greater bearing area and increased pulling power, replaces the round wheels with two large sprockets, according to an illustrated article in Popular Mechanics Magazine. Outside of each sprocket is a cast-steel arm which projects forward and downward, carrying at its front end a smaller idler wheel. A track tread passes around the sprocket and idler wheel, giving the tractor increased bearing area.

Lightest of Liquids.

Many experiments here and abroad have shown that liquid hydrogen is by far the lightest of all known liquids. Its density is one-fourteenth that of water, and, curiously enough, this happens to be the same ratio of density that hydrogen in the gaseous state bears to air. For long the lightest liquid known was liquid marsh gas, which possesses about two-fifths of the density of water.—Washington Star.
